

TONY

I'm not saying that, bro. I swear. I'm just...I want to help you out. And like I don't smell anything now. I just can't have tenants calling about you.

FELIPE

Do they say anything else?

TONY

They say they hear yelling sometimes. You guys fight a lot?

FELIPE

Yelling?

TONY

You know, like -

FELIPE

I know. No, we don't fight a lot. I mean we don't yell.

TONY

I don't want to get up in your business. Like I said, I want to help. But...

FELIPE

No, I appreciate it.

TONY

I like you guys. You never give me problems. Except for these calls. And really it's just Mrs...oh shit, I almost said who complained.

FELIPE

Mrs...Manukyan? But doesn't have a dog in a no pets building?

TONY

It wasn't no pets when she moved in. But she gets mad about everything. She told me we need to call a priest to bless the building because she feels like there's something evil. And I was like, lady, you trying to get me fired? We got like six Jewish renters. And Fatima, the lady with the scarf, pretty sure she's muslim. And the Nguyens, they got a little buddha altar for their grandma. All I'm saying, Mrs. Manukyan likes to point out what's wrong. And we don't need to give her no reasons. Especially if she's moving soon.

FELIPE

Thank you, Tony. If you ever need anything. Seriously, we owe you one.

Beat.
